

I see no reason that my fair use rights to record programs for later viewing should be less important than copyright protection for the content holders.

Technical measures that inhibit fair use of material is, in the long run, detrimental to society, damaging, and ultimately futile.